THE WORLD'S MEANEST ANIMAL

In a communication, the question is asked "what is the meanest animal we have," and the inquiry answers his own question by saying it is "a crooked and dishonest politician."

With which we agree.

The writer elaborates quite fully on the subject, and as I read between the lines he is referring to the congressional committee which made the farcical investigation of the Townsend plan. However, you are privileged to draw your own conclusions, and I will therefore allow the contributor to speak for himself. Under the caption of "Definition of An Unscrupulous Politician" he says:

"What is the meanest animal we have? A crooked and dishonest politician—he is like the worm of the earth, he is always destroying the very foundation on which we live, he is a sneak always working in the dark. It would break his back if he tried to look you square in the face. He lies when he is sleeping and he lies when he is awake. After God created Adam and Eve, the devil came forth. He was a crooked snakey politician. The snake beguiled Eve. Genesis Chapter 3:14 verse—"and the Lord God said unto the serpent, 'Because thou has done this, thou art cursed above all cattle and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shall thy go and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life.'

Teachers For High Schools Are Selected

Appointment of several teachers at the junior and high schools occupied the attention of the Richmond Union high school board of trustees at yesterday's meeting.

At the high school Miss Vivian Vaughn, of Richmond, Miss Frances Bradley, Wayne E. Perry and Miss Helen Johnson were named as teachers. Miss Alta Trezona was appointed to the Longfellow school while Miss Flore Head, Miss Shirley Millman and Merle Giberson were named on the Roosevelt school faculty.

TEACHERS NAMED
These new teachers will replace teachers who are taking leaves of absence or who are resigning.

Appointment of Miss Helen Johnson to the commercial course at the high school followed a somewhat lengthy argument when Professor G. T. Troxwell of Kensington appeared on behalf of Mrs. H. Harbors, who is teaching in a school n a valley town.

VOICE IS CANVASSED
The professor asked that Mrs.
Harbors be appointed to the job as she is a taxpayer of the county and is well qualified for the position.

However, Superintendent of Schools
W. T. Helms had recommended Miss Johnson for the position and the board gave its approval.

Results of the election held last Friday were canvassed by the board and the certificates of the election

JURIST IS ACCUSED IN RUM PROBE

Governor Frank F. Merriam, who was present at last night's make any statement to newspaper men concerning the present liquor investigation now in pro-

OAKLAND, June 9.—Chief Justice
George Hickman et al. was the interlocutor between the State Board of Equalization and owner of an Oakland drinking club in a $1500 bribe were made before the Alameda county grand jury here today.

George Fawcett, one of the owners of the former Lakeside Club testified that Hickman "arranged" restoration of his license when it was suspended.

PHONE CALL TOLD

Fawcett, called by Chief District Attorney Ralph Hoyt to tell of circumstances surrounding the suspension and restoration of the club's license, said he telephoned Hickman December 11 when the judge was attending a meeting of the State Board of Equalization at Sacramento. At that time the board was hearing the club's application for restoration of its license.

Fawcett said Hickman telephoned Fred Hurbut, son of the other owner of the club, C. B. Hoel, the

Employee Of Hoover Dies In Accident

PALO ALTO, June 9—UP—Tragedy touched the quiet San Juan Hill home of former President Herbert Hoover today when David Sanguineti, 50-year-old gardener, died from bullet wound suffered while he was working in the basement of the Hoover home.

It was generally believed the wound was accidentally inflicted.

There also was a possibility of suicide.

The shooting occurred late yesterday and Sanguineti, father of two children, was taken to Palo Alto hospital where he died today after Dr. Blake Wilbur, son of Stanford's president, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, former cabinet officer, and other doctors worked all night and through most of the day in a vain effort to save him.

Hoover is in the East, en route to the Republican national convention where he will speak tomorrow.

Sanguineti technically was in the employment of Stanford University, of which Hoover is a member of the board of trustees. The gardener also worked part time on Palo Alto estates, which explains his presence in the Hoover basement.

A spokesman for the Hoover family said the shooting was an accident and it occurred while the gardener was examining a supposedly unloaded weapon.

COTS BEING SHIPPED

MARTINEZ, June 9.—Forty-four cars of apricots have been shipped to eastern centers thus far by Diabolo Valley growers. Sheriff John A. Miller announced today. The sheriff, with nine deputies, is remainning at Brentwood during the peak of the harvest season. He said the harvest is proceeding rapidly among the orchards in orderly fashion with work being registered through the state employment service.

Trade union councils had protested against ratings Nolan purportedly had given a group of state employees. Merriam said that as a matter of fact Nolan had not filed any ratings at all for the men and that he would be instructed to make ratings at a very early date.

Held to four scattered hits, the Stanavos team of the Standard Oil Twilight League last night bowed to the Caldos by a score of 2 to 1 in a game played at the First street field.

Olsen was on the mound for the winners and pitched good ball, allowing four hits and striking out six men. Vigre hurled for the losers and was touched for two singles. He struck out four men.

The winners scored one run in the first inning when White hit, went to second on Culler's sacrifice and scored on Wilson's double.

The second run came in the fourth inning when Gubbins put one over the fence.

The lone Stanavos run came in the first inning when Krasovich was safe on Gubbins' error and scored on Zimmerman's double.

Wage Increase Is Granted To Paper Workers

PORLAND, Ore., June 9.—UP—Regional bargaining in the Pacific Coast pulp and paper industry proved amicable and effective for the third successive year today when employers and officials of two unions agreed on wage increases totaling about $1,000,000 in the coming year for 11,000 workmen in 299 mills.

The unions won other concessions including virtually a closed shop, reclassification of nearly 1,000 jobs, an agreement supposed to be "strike proof" and complete arrangements for amicable settlement of disputes.

Employers again recognized the International Brotherhood of Papermakers and the International Brotherhood of Pulp and Sulphite workers as bargaining agents for all employees.

Stockton Plant Employees End Strike Of Week

STOCKTON, June 9.—UP—Accepting terms of a 15 day truce, workers of the R. G. LeTourneau road machinery manufacturing plant returned to their jobs today, ending a week-long strike which involved 200 men.

The strikers will return to work under conditions existing prior to their walkout. Meantime the committee will draft a working agreement for submission, after the truce, suggested by the Citizens' Labor Relations Committee.

Company officials had threatened to close their plant and move operations to their Peoria, Ill., factory.

Coughlin Plot Is Charged To Legion Leader

DETROIT, June 9.—UP—Police tonight investigated charges by Mrs. Margaret Dean that her husband, Dayton Dean, "trigger man" of the Black Legion had joined the order to "sell" Father Charles E. Coughlin, a charge that the Black Legionnaire has firmly denied.

Dean was disclosed as a member of the radio priest's National Union for Social Justice, but he insisted his affiliation had been made because he believed in the union's principles.

Strikebreakers

Reopen Lumber Company Plant

OMAK, Wash., June 9.—UP—A

33 percent crew of strike-breakers today partially re-opened the Biles-Coleman lumber mill, which closed May 4 when 600 employees struck over 17 wage and working conditions demands.

A crew of 200, escorted through the picket lines by a large number of Omak business men and farmers, went to work. A hundred strikers on the picket checked the men who entered and declared only eight of the strike-breakers were union men.

There was no violence and the strike board has maintained there will be none.

President Ross McNett of the company said the mill would resume full schedules by next Monday, but strike leaders were confident they could block successful operation by the large number of skilled operators still on strike.

The Chicago Cubs made it two straight over the Philadelphia Phillies and ran their consecutive winning streak to six by triumphing 6 to 3.

The Pittsburgh Pirates administered a twin licking to the Brooklyn Dodgers taking the first 4 to 1 and the final 7 to 5.

IL DUCE QUILTS THREE JOBS IN ITALY CABINET

ROME, June 9.—UP—Premier Benito Mussolini tonight relinquished three cabinet posts and named his 23 year old son in law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, minister for foreign affairs.

In addition to the foreign ministry, Il Duce relinquished the portfolios of minister of corporations and minister of colonies. Ferruccio Lantini was named minister of corporations and Alessandro Leonna, minister of colonies.

PARLIAMENT SHOCKED

Dino Alfieri was selected to succeed Ciano as minister of press and propaganda.

The appointment of Ciano to the all-important foreign affairs post at this critical time shocked diplomatic circles, partly because of his inexperience in international affairs and partly because much of the present tension in Europe was stirred up by Italian aerial activity in the Ethiopian campaign, a considerable amount of which was under the leadership of Ciano.

SHAKE-UP SEEN

The youthful filer, newspaperman and diplomat was commander of Italy's "desperate squadron" of bombers, which played a tremendous part in the Fascist conquest of Emperor Haile Selassie's kingdom.

Giuseppe Pastorini, present ambassador to Warsaw, was appointed under secretary for foreign affairs, succeeding Fulvio Suvich.

Reliable sources said the cabinet shake up is a prelude to important changes in Italy's diplomatic service.

What will become of Suvich is not known, but it was believed generally that he would be given one of Italy's most important diplomatic posts.

With Ciano and Bastianini, both in their early 30s, in the foreign ministry, Italy's foreign policy is expected to be aggressive and vigorous. Their appointment was regarded as especially significant as it was announced three weeks ago that from the date of the League of Nations assembly will meet in extraordinary session to settle the Italian-Ethiopian problem.

Ciano entered the diplomatic service in 1926. He served at Rio de Janeiro; Buenos Aires; Shanghai and Peking, becoming a full fledged minister at the last post.

Hay-Fever Sufferers Cheer Pollen-Hunter
Dunham as He Seeks a Cure

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.
A LARGE number of hay-fever victims also have asthma, which is likely to begin about two weeks after the initial attack of hay-fever. Most cases are sensitive to pollens of more than one type and their attacks may run all during the spring, summer, and fall. Fortunately, by the use of skin tests, we are able to determine to which pollens the patient is susceptible. After finding the cause or causes by weekly injections of extracts of the various pollens, immunity may be established. The injections must be started almost six or seven weeks before the first pollen attack. An injection is given each week beginning with a small dose and is increased enough to cause some irritation of the nose and eyes. The amount given at each dose, if treatment is not started early, the dose must be given more frequently and the results are not as satisfactory. Prolonged previous treatment is very beneficial in about eighty-nine per cent of cases.

Prevention Will Come

With the advent of air-conditioned homes and offices, much benefit is derived by the hay-fever sufferers who stay in these places. In our city, some patients sleep in an air-conditioned room at night and often do not suffer the next day until evening.

Prevention is the "successful means of treatment. And prevention is bound to come if present diligence in research is kept up. Under the personal sponsorship of Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, a volume was recently published recording the observations of a single man in this special field of research, Dr. C. Dunham, chief botanist of the Abbott Laboratories in Chicago, has made pollens his "big game" and his hunting expeditions have taken him far and wide. His quest has led him from Boston Common to the Everglades, from the Ozarks to the Columbia River. In his travels through low-lying swamps, on an airplane 10,000 feet up in the air, Mr. Dunham is first and always a pollen hunter. He finds the tall as interesting as small trees tracked by wild beasts. He has given invaluable aid to all workers in his field and collaborated in their work of preparing hay-fever "shots," the virus used for preventive treatment.

Dr. Fishbein says, "There is hardly a specialist in the field of hay-fever who has not depended on Mr. Dunham's contribution for the development of his work." Mr. Dunham defends his obsession by saying that the queen of a curse of this distress is fully as interesting as that involved in yellow fever or poliomyelitis. But while these diseases have inspired dramatic stories, hay-fever has remained non-fatal and funny, like seasickness, and of concern only to the sufferers themselves and to the patent medicine men.

Skin Tests Show Came

Now that it has been learned that various forms of sensitivity to pollens can be determined by skin tests, the proper boast of the day, according to Pollen-Hunter Dunham, is not an operation for appendicitis or gall stones, but how many skin tests you had twenty-four from shoulder to wrist at the same time." I heard a remarkable woman of eighty claim just yesterday. In fact, hay-fever is far from being entirely a medical subject and its presenting so many non-medical problems makes it of personal interest to the most of us.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: A friend has entered business following a divorce and is using her maiden name again. Is this good form? Some folks in our town are criticizing her. They seem to think that a woman who has been married should retain her husband's name and be known as Mrs. ——

ANSWER: It is customary for a divorced woman to retain her husband's surname. It is often correct, however, for her to resume her maiden name. This is purely a matter of preference. Married women with husbands use their maiden names in business or professions today, and it is accepted by the whole world, including their husbands as correct. Who has a better right to resume her maiden name than a woman who gives up a husband through divorce?

QUESTION: May a bride wear a dress at a simple, informal wedding? —B. N. G.

ANSWER: It is the bride's privilege to dress in conventional wedding clothes at her own wedding, however it is conducted, even if it is strictly a family affair and held in the morning.

Guide to Charm

Cosmetics a Big Problem On Vacation

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THOSE of you who are wise know that summer and vacation time are created especially for making pretty girls prettier and more exciting and for bringing out unsuspected loveliness in girls who have always been considered plain.

You wise ones probably know all the tricks. Your skin seems to come alive and grows warm and rich, buoed on sun-kissed beaches. Your bodies become lithe, and young and responsive while you rest and swim and play. You have a new sparkle in your eyes and even your personality becomes more pleasing.

Those among you who have had less experience—or who have always thought that summer is just another season—are asking how you, too, may get more joy and beauty out of this summer. You want golden skins, bright eyes and healthy bodies and my job is to help you get them.

"Alice" wants to know what cosmetics she should take along on her vacation. She doesn't want to tan very much since it is slow in fading and her skin goes through an unpleasant yellowish period before she is fair again. She doesn't say, however, where she is going and this is really what determines the cosmetics she should use.

If you expect to go to the seashore, use a sunburn preventative and over this pat a liquid powder. Use your regular rouge and lipstick and over the latter apply a film of cold cream or pomade. Dust with a little of your everyday complexion powder and you can be reasonably certain that you won't get more than a faint tan even after hours of exposure.

If you go to the plains or mountains, use a sunproof cream that is tinted to give you a sun-kissed look while it absorbs or reflects the sunlight. Just on little sun-tan powder and only a hint of rouge. If your lips need more color, touch them lightly with your cheek rouge and then apply pomade liberally. You want to look as natural as possible. And on occasions when you are mountain climbing, take along a heavy cream and use it freely to prevent a bad snow burn.

"How can I keep my hair nice in the summer? I love to swim and go bareheaded."

A little sun is good for your hair. It tones the scalp and is a splendid corrective for over-oily hair. Since it does tend to dry out the natural oils, however, you should use brilliantine or a special oil to prevent split ends and roundness. If you swim in the surf, be sure to drain all the salt water out of your hair immediately after your swim, then dry with an absorbent towel and spray on some of the brilliantine.

You had better have a good permanent wave before you start your vacation. It requires less care and effort to keep your hair looking nice. And you won't have to spend half of your time having your hair done when you might be seeking romance.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: Why do lines and wrinkles appear? I am still under thirty, but I look like a woman of thirty-five or forty. I think I am in fairly good health and I do not worry. I have always tried to take good care of my skin. Please help me.—Selma.

Your first lines are usually the result of facial habits. Of course, holding your facial muscles tense, "making faces" or squinting, as you grow older, the layer of fatty tissue often becomes depleted and the muscles less firm. This allows the lines to deepen and makes them more difficult to eradicate. Illness and reducing too rapidly are frequent causes of lines and wrinkles. You will have to manage nightly with a rich cream and use a good astringent. It would be well for you to have a physical examination and circumcision of your diet and living habits.

Woman of your age certainly didn't have anything more serious than a few light expression lines in her face.

QUESTION: I have tried my own powder shades with best unsatisfactory results. Will you tell me how it should be done?

At the moment buttons and other forms of novelty closing and decorations are still full of individuality. For example, Schiaparelli's "clock" dress made of brown wool, has stiff vessels of white plaster which also make a belt and bag clasp. Aix's large silver feather which holds the drapery of a gown. Jodele's single button closing with a button simulating the face of a clock and the two shades test the color on your freshly cleaned face. Add more of the darker or lighter powder if it is needed.

A Cool Gown for Summer Dances

Maria Shelton, screen player, wears a printed pique gown—a style that will be popular at dances this summer. Miss Shelton's dress has a field flower design on a white background. Color is added to the red poppies worn as a corsage and as a hair decoration. The wing effect in the shoulder ruffles, giving a pert appearance to the dress, is done by placing wires in the hem.

Speaking of Style

Try to Mix Up Color In Accessories

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Recently I mentioned the casual, unrelated velvet jacket. In looking about I find that jackets, of course, are represented in most collections. Watch for new interpretations of brocades for evening, following after Alix's small patterned brocade evening jackets with the peplum in deep folds standing out over the hips: this was worn over a navy jersey gown. Jodele does white fitted pique coats over a navy dress, with the neckline simulating a man's evening tie.

"Accessories which do not match," is, in fact, the slogan in high style circles. If the idea sounds revolutionary it is because fashionable women feel it is time to reveal again the prevailing tendency to overlook the mismatched accessory. It actually is overdoing things to have five or more accessories matched carefully. The effect is bound to be spoopy.

Instead of having gloves, hats, belt, hat, flower and maybe handkerchief or shoes all carefully matched, try for a more nonchalance distribution of color. Two or at the most three, matched accessories are enough for anybody.

At the moment buttons and other forms of novelty closing and decorations are still full of individuality. For example, Schiaparelli's "clock" dress made of brown wool, has stiff vessels of white plaster which also make a belt and bag clasp. Aix's large silver feather which holds the drapery of a gown. Mrs. Martin Shows a Jobseeker How to Turn Talents Into Money

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

BEFORE starting in business for one's self, it is essential to have had some previous experience, unless one's talents and ability are exceptional. To speak cold-bloodedly about it, it's better to acquire experience at the expense of others. For a young girl to launch out for herself, no matter how modestly, she must have exceptional qualifications.

Even if this experience is in other lines, it is not lost. Business principles do not vary enough from one follows one line of endeavor or another.

You and Your Child

Child Rebels Against Too Many Bosses

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

VERNON was playing very quietly and no one paid attention to what he was doing until father entered the living room. He went directly to the boy, removed the book from his hands and scolded. "You mustn't scribble in daddy's books."

Turning the pages of the book, he discovered more damage had been done than he had suspected. Vernon's anger mounted.

"Vernon," he threatened, "you'd better not let me catch you doing this again!" Father looked with blazing eyes from his wife, to his mother, to his brother-in-law; all seated in the same room. "Why did you let him take this book? Why didn't someone stop him?" Then to Vernon, "You're a bad boy."

Vernon smiled, and seeking a more comfortable atmosphere, started to leave the room. In passing he looked appealingly at his mother. She felt sorry for him, of course, but knowing that he deserved a lesson she said, "You're a bad boy."

As Vernon blinked back the tears, grandmother stage-whispered, "Yes, you're a bad boy." And uncle also lent his voice to the chorus, expressing the same sentiment.

In many families whenever a child needs correction, the whole adult contingent feels called upon to side against him. They feel no doubt that in union there is strength, and thereby hope to teach the child the proper respect for authority.

But just as "too many cooks spoil the broth," too many voices weaken the force of authority. Even when mother pleasantly suggests, "Why don't you get out your paints, Vernon?" the idea is made less attractive by having it repeated by grandmother, dad and others.

A child will listen to one voice of authority and be impressed. Parents have a right to demand silent co-operation from each other and from other adults living under the roof. No child requires wholesale correction and advice. Indeed, he is suspicious of it and resents it. And it is merely a question of time before he will rebel against it.

The same is true of typing. In small towns where men cannot afford, or really do not need, the services of a stenographer, there is sometimes a need for a freelance typist.

Were I in your place I would take any job that came to hand until I had time to plan some constructive course. In the meantime get all the information you can on dietary courses.

CHIFFON KNIT

Responsibility on Owner

"My dear Mrs. Martin: A very old friend who was going away for several months asked me to keep her cocker spaniel for her. I did this and the dog was run over by a car and so badly injured that we had him put out of his misery. Imagine my feelings. My friend has come home and I have not had the heart to tell her about it. Do you consider that we are in any way responsible for the dog? I mean to replace or to repay her. She will be home in about two weeks. Would you write her or wait until she returns?" Concerned.

What an unfortunate position to be in! But if you did everything you could to care for her pet, I see no reason why she should feel resentful toward you.

It is expecting a great deal of a friend to ask her to care for one's pet. If your friend did not feel that her dog would be well cared for she would not have left him with you and the responsibility is really hers.

Naturally, she is going to feel badly about her loss. I think you should not wait for her to return, but should write to her at once.

WANTED MONEY

Hickman allegedly asked Hurlbut to come to Sacramento right away as the "situation is tough." Hurlbut went and a few hours later Hickman called Fawcet at the club and told him that he would have to have $1500 to "fix it up," Fawcet testified.

Fawcet said he told Hickman that he didn't have that amount but could give $250. He paid this amount, he said, and later signed a note for the remainder.

In earlier testimony, Fawcet said the owners hired Hickman November 5 to represent them at the suspension hearing for a $430 fee.

On November 9, Hickman came to the club and asked for $100 advance fee, Fawcet declared, continuing:

"I told him we had only $200 and planned to use that as part payment of sales tax arrears we owed."

Hickman told him, the witness testified:

"Well, you give me the $200 and I will arrange this."

RECEIPTS GIVEN

The same evening, Hickman returned to the club and gave Fawcet two receipts for $100 each, one from Hickman and the other bearing the stamp of the State Board of Equalization, Fawcet told the grand jury.

The attorney said he had arranged the sales tax matter with Fred E. Stewart, Oakland member of the Equalization Board, and had talked with John Evans, assistant administrator and supervising auditor for the board in Alameda and who human liberty is at stake," said Senator Frederic Steiwer of Oregon, keynote speaker before the Republican national convention, who trumpeted the G. O. P. battle cry for 1936.

STEIWER IN KEY-NOTE OF CONVENTION

RUNNING MATE?

His attack on the New Deal—a bold and savage offensive on all fronts—came at the second session of the convention at a time when its plain supporters of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas were so sure of victory that they were looking around for a vice presidential running mate.

Many of them thought that the man they wanted stood before them tall, broad-shouldered Steiwer from the Pacific Coast who has strength in the Far West and is acceptable in the East.

As he stood there, rolling out words over the heads of the delegates, he moved into the favorite's position in the vice-presidential race. He got the convention off to a fighting start, for he found nothing good in the New Deal and said it was pushing America down the road toward Communism.

LASHES NEW DEAL

He even lashed away at the Civilian Conservation Corps, one New Deal project of which many Republicans approve. Steiwer said the idea of putting young men in forest camps at a salary of $30 a month deprived them of a traditional American privilege—the right to hope for wealth and dream of power.

By so doing he set the tone of the convention, which on Thursday will hear candidates put into nomination for president and then will begin balloting.

BIDS FOR BOURBON VOTES

Steiwer did not give delegates and spectators time enough to get comfortably settled in the 10,000 seats here until he was out bidding for Democratic votes this Fall.

"Our purpose here," he said, "is not only to adopt a Republican platform and to nominate a Republican president—but deeper and thoroughly American purpose is to start the drive to put an American deal into the place now usurped by a self-styled 'New Deal.'

He and two other officials of the concern were charged with conspiracy and theft in the promotion of an oil well development near Galt, Calif. They were convicted but won a new trial on appeal. Rubens disappeared before the second trial could be started.
